

Questions for thought:

Why does evolution threaten some religions?

IS evolution just a little wrong, as intelligent design proponents seem to suggest? (Or, a LOT wrong as creationists seem to suggest?)

Why has this controversy lingered 150 years?

Why is the controversy so perhaps even larger now?

Scientists that don't adhere to evolution- who are they and why are they saying those things?

Issues raised today are the same as those raised during Darwin's lifetime.

(In 1800, the human eye was cited as a complexity hard to explain by factors other than divine intervention)

Darwin's life - the personal side of someone we would have liked;
How did he reconcile evolution and religion?

Altruism and evolution. Am I just a bunch of molecules?

Are we programmed through evolution to be spiritual?

Does evolution say (or prove) that no deity can influence life?
